TAKEN FROM HER MOTHER

Agent Lewis, of the Guardians, Saves a Little Girl.

ONLY BY DETECTIVE WORK

He and Agent Parkman Followed the Woman and Secured Evidence to Prove Her Evil Life and Character. Her Double Life Exposed—Scene in the Police Court.

A frowzy-headed thief had just been "put away" for six months by Judge Miller Tuesday afternoon, when there was a slight commotion at the door of the upper police court, over which his honor presides. The next instant the tall form of Agent Parkman, of the Board of Children's Guardians, entered the courtroom. He had by the hand a pretty little girl, about eleven years of age, whose round, innocent face appeared woefully out of place there.

When the proper time arrived the agent told Judge Miller the circumstances surrounding the child's case. Behind this bare statement of facts there was a story—the old, sad story of a woman's fall and the consequent separation from her child by the strong arm of the law.

MOTHER'S DOWNFALL.
About two years ago the father of the little girl, a prosperous traveling man, died, and soon the mother fell into evil ways. Like all women who forsake the plane of purity and respectability, she found the descent easy and rapid.

Step by step she went down until she reached the lowest level of outcast womanhood, the street walker.

The mother always kept up a semblance of respectability, however, by stopping at a good boarding house in the northwest section of the city and at a considerable distance from her nightly haunts on Pennsylvania avenue, where she is well known to the police and the regular habitués of the street.

The mother continued to lead this double life for some time. To the men and women about town—the romancers—she was one of them, and no midnight escapade was too rich for her. To her simple, confiding little daughter she was the embodiment of pure motherhood.

The lane of wickedness has many turns and angles. She went the crooked length at a rapid pace, secure in the belief that none knew of her dual existence in sunshine and shadow. In this the woman was mistaken.

SHADOWED BY DETECTIVES.
One of the many ladies in this city, whose works of mercy take them among the poor and the outcast, gained an inkling of the mother's mode of life, and reported it to Agents Lewis and Parkman, of the Board of Guardians, in order that the child might be rescued from the mother's contaminating influence.

The usual investigation by the agents began. For three nights Mr. Parkman played detective and followed the woman as she plied her trade on Pennsylvania avenue. Last Saturday night Agent Lewis joined his fellow-worker, and together they followed the woman until she accosted one of the party, who had been observing her movements. She did not know she was talking to an agent of the law, who would so soon take from her the pretty little brown-haired girl, whose innocence she was daily rearing.

After several nights of untiring detective work the agents of the board obtained the most damaging evidence against the mother. The next step was to take the case into Judge Miller's court, which was done on Tuesday.

The mother was there, prepared to make a determined fight to retain possession of her child, notwithstanding the life she was leading. She employed Attorney Joseph Sheldon as her counsel, but when he learned of the damaging evidence that would be brought against her he advised the woman to make no defense. She wisely joined his lawyer's advice, and Judge Miller accordingly turned the little girl over to the board.

EFFORTS TO RECLAIM HER.
The mother left the courtroom with tears in her eyes. The child is now in one of the city institutions, but will probably be sent to her grandparents, a simple old New Hampshire farmer and his venerable wife, who are unaware of the nature of the life their only daughter is leading here on the streets of Washington.

An effort will be made by Christian women, it is said, to reclaim the mother. Her son, a bright youth, embezzled $500 from a counting room last year, but was not prosecuted for the crime.

No More Trouble Among Choctaws.
Paris, Tex., Oct. 8.—The Choctaw council canvassed the returns of the election for governor yesterday. McCain had a plurality of 210 over Jackson. There was no trouble whatever. As soon as McCain was elected, a large number, who had gone to Tusahoma to witness the count, returned to their homes. No further trouble is anticipated, and Indian Agent Wisdom has requested that the troops be withdrawn, which will be done at once.

National Bank Call.
Comptroller Eckels today issued a call for the report of the condition of national banks at the close of business on Tuesday, October 7.

MINISTER PAID THE FINE

Arrested for Knocking Chips From the Monument.

HIS BRIDE WANTED THEM

The Clergyman Said He Did It Because His Wife Desired the Souvenirs—Reckless Policemen Who Fire at Flying People Again Are Sternly Warned by the Judge.

Judge Kimball had only four prisoners in the dock this morning, and among them was Cutler Dunmore, colored, arrested by Policemen C. C. Smith, of the Fourth precinct, who charged the prisoner with shooting craps in Winder's alley on September 25 last.

Before the trial was over Smith was severely rebuked by the court for his unwarranted action in firing at the craps shooters, who ran on the approach of the officer. Two witnesses swore Smith aimed directly at the flying gamblers, while the policeman said he fired in the air.

As for the man he arrested, it was shown to the court's satisfaction he was not engaged in the game and went in the alley attracted by the sound of the shot.

Minister Savoy, of the Episcopal Church, who was in a huge with them when the revolver was discharged. Lawyer Hewitt, who represented the defendant, denounced the officer's conduct and Judge Kimball said: "An officer who will do that should be brought up on charges. Time and time again I have cautioned and warned policemen against the reckless use of firearms, and so has Judge Miller, but they seem to disregard the warning."

THE JUDGE'S REMARKS.
"There is no excuse for it, and the matter should be looked after by the trial board. The lives of innocent people are placed in jeopardy, and I think after the judges of this court say so a few more times it will be stopped."

As his honor proceeded he became indignant at the wanton behavior of Smith, and declared emphatically it was an outrage on the community.

"This was only a trifling infraction," continued the court. "No serious crime had been committed, and the policeman had no right to use his pistol."

Smith tried to explain, but the judge refused to listen to him, saying nothing could palliate his indiscretion.

The defendant denied being in the game, and his lawyer said his testimony should stand as well as the officer's.

"As for the witnesses," said Hewitt, "there is no incentive for them to commit perjury."

On this point his honor expressed himself strongly. He said the perjury committed before him each day was frightful. "I cannot understand it," he said, "why people perjure themselves here day after day for no reason whatever."

The court told one of the girls he did not believe her, but acquitted Dunmore on Wallace's statement.

It is very probable after Judge Kimball's remarks, the Commissioners will investigate the affair.

Martin L. Rhodes, a Methodist preacher from Flinders, Morris county, N. J., here on his bridal trip, was charged with destroying public property in chipping some stone from the Washington Monument with his umbrella.

He was arrested by Special Officer Walter Jones this morning and came to court with his wife, a pretty blonde, dressed in a state-colored wedding dress and a severe, tight-fitting English box-coat. She wore a smart toque and a black box around her slender white throat.

Her husband, who was dressed in the austere, conventional black of his calling, and showed considerable trepidation on the stand.

THE MINISTER'S ADMISSION.
He acknowledged his guilt, and after Officer Jones had shown the pieces of stone the defendant had broken from one of the marble blocks, said bravely: "Your honor, I did chip these pieces because my wife asked me." The preacher cast an anxious glance at her as she concealed the blush on her sweet face among the feathers of her bonnet.

"He gave a pretty good jam with his umbrella," said Jones, "to break the slab and I thought he should be arrested."

"You acted perfectly right," said the judge, frowning at the minister. "The idea of people breaking pieces from the Monument! I can't understand what insane impulse prompts them to do it. What use are those tiny fragments of stone to them?" His honor stared at the chips in Jones' hands, while the preacher cleared his throat and his wife blushed an additional shade of scarlet.

"You are fined $10," said the judge. "Is that the best you can do?" asked Mr. Rhodes, as he fished in his pocket for some money.

"No, indeed, sir," said the judge, ironically. "I can make it more if you want it."

The preacher hurriedly gave Clerk Harper $10 and joined his wife, who thinks Judge Kimball is a real mean man to curtail the pleasure of her honeymoon in breaking into the pocketbook of her hubby.

Elbert Riley, a white boy, arrested for throwing stones on complaint of a neighbor, Mrs. Cook, who lives next door to his mother in the southeast, cried so bitterly at being brought into a police court that the judge took pity on him, and after a warning sent him home.

"CHICAGO DAY" CELEBRATIONS.
Political Parades to Be Prominent Features of the Occasion.

Chicago, Oct. 8.—From every indication the Chicago Day parades will be the grandest pageants of their kind, or in point of numbers, of any kind ever seen in this city, noted as it is for civic and military demonstrations.

"Chicago Day," which commemorates the burning of the city, is to be celebrated on Friday, the twenty-fifth anniversary of the great fire, by a stupendous parade of Republicans and anti-silver Democrats in the morning and afternoon, and another great demonstration by the Democrats and other advocates of the free coinage of silver in the evening.

The first parade starts at 10 o'clock and it is estimated that seven hours will be required for the marchers to pass a given point, although the marching will be in close order and at a rapid pace. The night parade is expected to vie with that of the gold advocates in point of numbers and enthusiasm, so there will be little cessation of martial music and cheering heats from early morning until midnight.

Reviewing stands have been erected in many prominent locations, on one of which the Presidential candidates of the Indianapolis convention will be seated. Flags and banners already adorn every downtown street, but their number will be multiplied many fold by the morning of the parade.

No Cyclone in Oklahoma.
Guthrie, O. T., Oct. 8.—Investigation was made last night of a report that the town of Edmond, Oklahoma, had been devastated by a cyclone. The rumor is unsupported by any facts that can be obtained from here, the railway officials denying that there was any unusual weather conditions prevailing in that section of the Territory.
